CHAMBERLIN NEVER THOUGHT HE WOULD FAIL

Mate Recalls How He Worked His Way Through College

By RUBY WELLS (Special Dispatch to The Star)

NEW YORK, June 7.—So sure was Clarence D. Chamberlin of the success of his transatlantic non-stop flight that he and his wife never even discussed the possibility of failure.

"He wouldn't have started had we not both been sure he would make it," explained his wife, who almost made the trip. Chamberlin and his wife, who were married in 1919, were in a flowered silk dress, Mrs. Chamberlin, refreshed after hearing husband safely across ocean, and in Germany, chatting gaily, turning constantly to anecdotes about the flier.

"He must have flown lower than planned so he would be seen and would be sent back that he was safe," she asserted.

Mrs. Chamberlin

Couldn't Reach Gas

Mrs. Chamberlin tells of her husband's early interests. In his home, she used to take a one-cylinder Oldsmobile apart, she says laughingly. "I suppose that was one of the first automobiles built. He was so small, that when he drove it he had to stand up to touch the gas."

Jumping back to his youth, she proudly told how he worked his way through Iowa State College, where he studied electrical engineering. "He used to go every day from Ames, where the college is, to Des Moines to work in the electrical section of railroad shops there," she said. "At the end of the

LOVE INTEREST FIGURING IN LEVINE FAMILY

Kiss of Wife and Hugs of Daughter Will Be Greatest Honors

By ALEXANDER C. HERMAN (Special Dispatch to The Star)

BELLE HARBOR, New York, June 7.—Love interest, the one element missing in the Lindbergh epic, is contained aptly in the life of Charles A. Levine. His record flight with Clarence D. Chamberlin to Germany marked the climax of a romantic life dreamed of by so many—and lived by so few. No matter what decorations abroad or receptions at home, the kiss that will be his when his wife meets him in Berlin and the hugs when his daughter, Eloise, sets her arms around his neck will give him more honor than any other.

Mrs. Levine

The Levines are a typical Jewish family, with all its devotion, love and sentimentality for feelings. That is why he hoped off so hastily, with scarcely any preparation, to answer aspirations regarding his apartment, born of controversy with Berland, originally slated for the trip.

"That is why, to spare his wife's feelings, he had to fool her rather cruelly at the departure. But she has forgiven him proudly, and his daughter's happiness knows no bounds. With her husband about her home, the proudest youngster in the land. "My daddy has flown across the Atlantic," she says, "Clear across the ocean." And, if any other youngster dare belittle this feat, he had better watch out. For Eloise is no mean scrapper.

As a matter of fact, Eloise assures us that she is a good girl herself, having been up three times.

Going to Berlin

Her last trip almost ended in tragedy when the landing gear of the Columbia snapped after the child had christened it. But Chamberlin, who guided the father to safety across the Atlantic, did as well by the child, in a remarkable landing, he returned her safe to her parents.

While the youngster is overjoyed, her mother is surprised. Still showing marks of her terrific emotional strain, she can but smile through tears. Within earshot of the Levine home roars the "Dark Sea." "It used to frighten me terribly," says the wife, quietly, "but no more."

She soon will be with her husband in Berlin for she is not accustomed to being away from him long.

School-Day Romance

There was a school-day romance that has lost none of its charm in after life.

But school interests, aside from his sweetheart, were not of Charles' primary concern. He always was tinkering around with things mechanical. At 18 he owned a motorcycle. Some of the money earned tending stable at a race track helped pay for it.

But the machine was too slow. He got an auto. And then began hankering for something to go up in one of the old Moisant Company airplanes, which were novelties in those days, even on Long Island. He was king that day and resolved to have more of it.

When Grace A. Nova finished high school, Charles decided that it was time to get married. She was 18, he was 19. To avoid family objections or suggestions the youngsters eloped to Atlantic City and were married.

Faced with the problem of making a living, the young man went into the junk business. His wife was his secretary. Together they made it a go.

Always Took Chances

But his mechanical interest and speed devotions never abated. He would race along the speedway at an 80-mile-an-hour clip in a truck auto without windshields or running board.

He would swim out so far that the life guards were driven ragged chasing him. Taking chances gave him a thrill in sport and business.

As with increased fluency he took greater interest in sports, he helped Christ Mathewson get control of the Boston Braves, and he helped many others. In turn his wife helped him in his activities, and the Levine family was as happy as any hereabouts.

He is only 30.

A few days before the trip, Mrs. Levine heard the men talking about provisions. She suggested that the sandwiches should be toasted, for toast, she reasoned, takes longer to stale than ordinary bread. But she didn't realize

Official Washington Feels New "Force" in Lindbergh

So Far Youth Has Been Kept in Tow by Ambassadors, but—

By CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Charles Lindbergh has official Washington scared stiff. That's the plain fact.

It's an irrefragable force.

That isn't so bad.

No, we have the irresistible forces of nature all around us. But we partly understand some of them. We even manage to tame them, more or less. If we don't, we don't, they're dangerous, but we do. We've found out how.

The Lindbergh force not only is irresistible; it's new—unknown.

TRUE. Lindy has been perfectly manageable thus far.

But consider. His mental processes inevitably must have been practically in abeyance from a minute or so after he stepped from his cockpit at Le Bourget.

Things began happening too fast then, for any brain to have kept up. Ambassadors Herriek and Houghton pulled the strings and Charlie responded, like an automaton.

BUT this won't last.

Charlie'll get back to "normalcy" and begin to think for himself again.

But:

The thoughts he thinks henceforward will weigh, with millions, like so many chunks of lead, or rather, 24-carat gold nuggets.

HERRIEK and Houghton are officials themselves. They think official thoughts.

Lindy as an irresistible force, with someone like Herriek or Houghton turning him on and off, at will, is officially o.k.—even useful perhaps. But when he starts running under his own auspices again—then will he still be controllable?

If not officialdom sees in him possibilities as dangerous as heck.

FOOT instance:

It's common chat that this 25-year-old kid has done more to re-establish good relations between this country and Europe than the state department has been able to do since the World War.

And did you notice that the state department soon discovered sound diplomatic reasons why it was best for

CINCINNATI SPEAKER ADDRESSES ROTARIANS

Harry D. Martin Discusses Merits of Workmen's Compensation Law

The saving from serious injury of 40,000 employees in the United States Steel Corporation alone, was held by Harry D. Martin, Cincinnati, an authority on workmen's compensation, as one of the outstanding accomplishments of the workmen's compensation law in a talk before the members of the Rotary Club at their luncheon at the Hotel Harding at noon yesterday.

The speaker, who represents 30 iron and steel companies in Cincinnati, in matters of workmen's compensation, said accidents, since the establishing of the workmen's compensation law has been reduced, per 300 day worker, from 242 to 81 per cent in frequency and from 27 to 10 per cent in severity.

Cites Disregard

A shocking disregard for human life, due to a high-pressure production and to a large per cent of foreign labor, existed prior to the passing of the compensation law in 1907. The employers' liability system which was in use at that time was a poor consolation for the worker, the speaker said, only 17 per cent of the injured ever succeeding in recovering compensation for their injuries.

Lindy to start right home? The state department didn't like that kind of talk.

WELL, Lindy's coming. He's still under control.

But suppose he'd said: "I seem to have done pretty well here. I guess I'll take a whirl at Russia and Mexico and Nicaragua and then maybe the Chinese."

Lives anybody doubt that world public opinion would have been back of him?—to say nothing of public opinion here. Professional diplomacy would have been kicked skyhigh.

THERE are also the army and navy aviation jealouses. Charlie may have something to say about them. He sure will have a respectful audience if he does.

In the matter of flying it's a cinch that Lindy will be an irresistible force, indeed.

Officialdom wishes it could feel confident he'll prove to be the manageable kind, but it recalls his father and is plenty worried—an irresistible force can make such awful trouble, once beyond control.

FOLLOWS IN FATHER'S STEPS

Edna Honeywell of St. Louis, daughter of Capt. Harry E. Honeywell, dean of American balloonists, has already made two balloon flights, and hopes to make five more, one of them alone, to win her pilot's license. Her father is planning to retire at the age of 55, with more flights to his credit than any other man.

You'd delight Blanche Ring if you offered her a Lucky Strike

She'd say to you:

"The life of an actress is one of nerve-strain. If she sings, also, her worries are doubled. Her audiences reflect her moods. If she is mentally tired, she cannot help but convey her fatigue to those out in front and the result is a form of ennui on both sides of the footlights. I have found a sure cure for such fatigue, on the part of the player, is a good cigarette. For years I have smoked Lucky Strikes and the mental balm and real enjoyment I have derived from them have helped me marvelously. In addition they have protected my voice. I use no other brand."

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

"The carriage waits without, my Lord!"

Back in the elegant eighties, that was a favorite line with writers of English society drama. And producers of burlesque liked to follow it up thus: "Without what, James?"

Today, thousands of costly automobiles "wait without." They stand along the curbs apparently awaiting for their rightful owners—but, it turns out, they often are waiting for crooks who would assume their ownership.

Don't let your car wait without full insurance against thieves, burglars and fire-riders. The cost of Fire and Theft Insurance is too little, the value of your car too great, the risk is too ever-present.

Let us furnish you a good, dependable Fire and Theft Policy.

Daily Proverb—"He that keeps out of harm's way will gather goodly riches."

The size of the bills may diminish, but not our liking for them.

There's no getting away from the fact that the opening of that Buffalo-Fort Erie bridge came at the psychological moment.

New York is at last coming to recognition of the fact that she was in error in assuming that she was the capital of the country.

Friends should look into the condition of Senator Borah. The self-repression necessary to maintain this long-continued quiet on his part must be dangerous.

After three or four decades in the newspaper business, we have about concluded that the chief requisite for a popular columnist is an absolute disregard for facts.

Gertrude Ederle's advice to Lindbergh is to "get the money while the getting is good." That's what Red Grange started out to do, but he's back in the ice business.

Democratic National Committee Dockweiler, of California, says "McAdoo is losing his grip." Our impression was that it passed from him when the railroads were turned back to their owners and the big political machine which had been created crumbled.

Seven liners with all their accommodations sold sailed from New York for Europe Saturday. And Europe keeps right on professing that she can't see how she can possibly pay her debt to us, apparently unmindful of the fact that we Americans are paying it for her.

For Health and Happiness.

The Kiwanis club has made announcement that its fourth annual camp for undernourished children will be opened on the Owens farm south of the city July 8 and that the twenty-eight youngsters who will participate in the outing have already been selected.

Last year there were thirty-five children at the camp, but the number has been reduced by twenty per cent. for this year by reason of the belief on the part of the club members that the reduction in number will permit of more attention to and better care of the youngsters than would be possible with the larger number.

Summer camps under the direction of capable people such as the Kiwanis club selects, where children have the benefit of fresh air and are given well-prepared and healthful foods which have been selected to develop the undernourished are of inestimable value. In fact, it is hardly possible to even approximate how far-reaching their beneficial effects may be. The one who originally conceived the idea of such camps, whoever he or she may have been, must have been inspired. Thousands—yes, hundreds of thousands—of undernourished and sickly children have been saved by such camps and have grown up to become strong and healthy men and women who were assets rather than liabilities to their respective communities throughout our land. Through healthy physiques we have healthy minds, and no land can be more greatly blessed than one which has a citizenship possessed of healthy minds.

And while we are on the subject and offering our felicitations to the local Kiwanis club let us also pay tribute to the members of Bird-McGinnis post of the American legion which proposes to go to Xenia and give a picnic to 100 of the smallest children in the Soldiers and Sailors' home there. That will mean a day of joy and happiness to the little ones, and how could a day be better employed? It's a fine idea—this is of the local Legion post—and we are heartily glad that it is to be put into execution.

Judge Lindsey Loses Out.

We haven't a doubt but what a large percentage of the people of the United States read with pleasure the news story under a Washington dateline, Monday, announcing that the supreme court of the United States had denied Judge Ben B. Lindsey a review of the Colorado supreme court's decision ousting him as the judge of the juvenile court of Denver on the ground that he was defeated at the November election of 1924 by Royal R. Graham, his opponent for the position.

The great majority of the people of America have great admiration for a good loser and mighty little for a bad one, and it seemed to be the general feeling that the judge comes under the latter classification. In addition to this, the public seemed to be tiring of what appeared to be Judge Lindsey's chronic pursuit of publicity. The public will stand for such pursuit for a time, but only for a time. Sooner or later it sickens of it. But unquestionably that which chiefly alienated the good will of the country—was we do not know what the reflex of it was in Denver—was the peculiar views entertained by Judge Lindsey on the subject of marriage. When he broke into the magazines as a champion of limited marriage, that was the final straw.

We may be wrong, but it is our belief that the sooner the country forgets Judge Lindsey and his new marriage idea the better it will be for the country.

Two Performances Compared.

A Washington wire story of Monday, after referring to the disappointment felt in the national capital at the ill-luck which forced down the Bellanca monoplane of Chamberlin and Levine almost within sight of Berlin, their goal, told us that, "while the Bellanca's flight lacked some of the spectacular and dramatic features of the Lindbergh dash, it is nevertheless regarded by air experts as even more significant. For the first time, the Atlantic has now been spanned by an aeroplane with a passenger."

Such may be the view of air experts, but it will strike the average reader as pretty thin stuff and as having the earmarks of professional jealousy of the youth who acted while far more experienced aviators talked. Either the air experts have forgotten that two British aviators, Alcock and Brown, flew the 1980 miles from St. John's, New Foundland, to Clifden, Ireland, eight years ago this month, or they differentiate between two aviators and an aviator and Levine, who may be held but a passenger, although he holds an aviator's license.

One is reluctant to refer to the misadventures of brave men such as Chamberlin and Levine must be conceded to be, but since the question is raised, we may as well go into it.

Lindbergh announced that he was going to fly to Paris and told his intimates the course he would follow. His plane was equipped with an induction compass and maps. He passed through fogs and a sleet storm which lasted all one night. Yet, poorly equipped as he was with instruments, he reached Ireland at a point within three miles of that he intended to make. From Ireland, he went directly on to Plymouth and Cherbourg and then to Paris and made a perfect landing. His flight was one of precision throughout and demonstrated that an aeroplane could be driven over a prescribed course from New York to Paris. Not only this, but he also demonstrated that an aeroplane could be flown across the North Atlantic at its greatest width. He was the pioneer who demonstrated the possibility. All others must follow him.

The Bellanca plane, Columbia, is equipped with an earth inductor compass, a magnetic compass, turn and bank indicator, air speed indicator, tachometer, thermometer, oil-pressure gauge, clock, altimeter, a drift meter, a speed meter and an octant for astronomical observation, all illuminated by electric lights. The oil pressure gauge shows the reading in pounds per square inch.

The air speed indicator gives the speed of the aeroplane through the air in miles per hour.

The bank and turn indicator tells the pilot when he is flying straight or when he is turning. This is very important, particularly in clouds and fog. The bank indicator enables him to maintain his level when flying straight and to tip the plane to the correct angle when turning.

The rate-of-climb indicator shows the rate of climb or descent in hundred feet per minute.

The radiator thermometer corresponds to a thermometer of an automobile.

The tachometer shows the speed of the engine.

The fuel gauge keeps the pilot informed of the quantity of gasoline in the tank.

The altimeter shows the height of the aeroplane above the ground.

The board is also equipped with an electric clock and a switch for controlling lights.

After leaving the Mauritanian, Sunday morning, about 400 miles west of Ireland, the Columbia ran into a storm, and until the next morning, neither Chamberlin nor Levine knew where they were. They were reported as sighted over Guernsey Island Sunday afternoon, far south of their course. They were sighted later at Land's End, the extreme southwestern point of England, then at Plymouth and near midnight of Sunday over Dortmund in Germany. At 12:55 Monday morning they landed at Eisleben, 110 miles southwest of Berlin, for fuel. Having taken on gas, they made the second start for Berlin. But, instead of flying northeast, despite the fact that they carried an instrument for following a straight course in a fog, they went almost directly eastward 115 miles and were forced down by engine trouble at Kottbus, sixty-five miles southeast of Berlin, where they landed in the mud breaking their machine's propeller.

All praise to Chamberlin and Levine over their wonderful flight. They have established a new aeroplane record for distance and an aeroplane record for time in the air over an approximately straight course. They have demonstrated their courage, and their spirit of daring, and shown fact in making Germany their goal. America is proud of them. But we feel safe in holding that they will not wrest from Lindbergh the place held by him in the heart of the world nor dim the chapter he has written in the annals of aeronautics.

Lindbergh achieved another distinction while over in Paris; he is probably the one American who has visited the French capital and not fallen for the faked sights of Montmartre.

The new bridge between the United States and Canada can handle 3,500 automobiles an hour. That should aid materially in quenching the thirst of the champions of "personal liberty."

We utterly refuse to credit Lita Chaplin's alleged charge that Charlie threatened her with a revolver. Now had she said he threw a pie at her, we might have accepted it as a possible reversion to second nature.

This is "Now You See It and Now You Don't" week in Kenton. The magicians of the land are assembled there in honor of Hon. W. W. Durbin for their annual convention, and report has it that the entire gathering will be cuffless as an evidence of good faith.

Even though, for good and sufficient reason, one may not be in position to follow the suggestion it carries, it certainly gives one a thrill to receive a circular letter from "Uncle Andy" Mellon calling attention to the fact that one's maturing bond holdings may be exchanged for 2 1/2 per cent. government securities callable a couple of decades hence.

THAT LITTLE GRAY HOME IN THE WEST.

Old Should Avoid Cold and Wet.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Old folks have to be careful on wet and chilly days. They don't stand exposure as well as young persons do. Their circulation machinery is not so flexible as it used to be.

Sometimes the great scientists question what we common folks call the "powers of resistance." But common sense teaches that long-used and ancient timbers and braces must in time show the effects of age. Sudden stress and strain may cause an old machine or an old building to go with a crash.

You have seen an old mill, a relic of pioneer days. It has been abandoned and neglected. In spite of its weight of years the frame withstands wind and storm. There comes a day, however, when it can endure no longer and falls with a crash.

What I desire to impress upon you is that old tissue can not endure what young cells and fibres can stand easily. Weather exposure for those advanced in life is one of the most trying of all physical experiences.

Even though this is the summer season, we have cold, wet days now and then, and at such times it is important to be exceedingly careful. Wet feet, chilling of the body, overfatigue when wet or cold—all these conditions are dangerous to old people.

The lining of the chest—the pleura—the nasal sinuses, the joints, as well as the muscles, are liable to become stiff and brittle. Old people with diseased teeth and gums or tonsils who are in danger, but any person in advanced life, after exposure such as I have described, may have pleurisy, neuritis, "rheumatism," infection and inflammation of one of the nasal sinuses, or inflammation in a joint.

If you get thoroughly chilled or wet, or "take cold," go to bed after a hot bath. Restore the circulation as quickly as possible. A hot water bag to the feet and some hot drinks will help a lot.

Be careful on a cold day about the temperature of the house. Don't look at the calendar and imagine it is comfortable just because it is the summer season. You must have a fire in the stove or furnace even if it is July or August.

This does not mean you must not have fresh air. Have the house thoroughly ventilated, even though you are keeping it warm with a fire.

Observance of these simple rules will protect and help to keep the old folks from illness.

Editorial Comment.

REAL HINDERERS OF PEACE MOVEMENT.

It appears that on Memorial day, the veterans who took part in the regular parade at Plainfield, before the war, were not so numerous as they were in the past. The well-known statement by Irish that in time to come awards shall be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks. The marchers said the inscription was "pacifist."

In commenting on the episode, the New York World inquires heatedly: "Just where are the pacifists in this country trying to lead us, and how? The World does not ask the really pertinent question. That question is: What are the pacifists doing to the same peace movement in this nation?"

It is ridiculous to suppose that the Plainfield veterans are bloodthirsty or are enamored of war. Unquestionably, ten years ago all of them would have supported the Italian utterance. But in the last decade, the professional exponents of pacifism have created a most peculiar and most deplorable situation. They have busily advocated traitorous refusal to fight for the republic in time of war. They have systematically set out to undermine the loyalty of the young men and young women of the nation in this regard. They have undertaken to scuttle the necessary defense system of the United States, and to a considerable extent, they have succeeded in doing so, and today our fleet and our army are in a woefully ineffective and dispirited condition. Viciously, and by the employment of misrepresentations, they are fighting the training camps and the R. O. T. C. in this particular matter, being actively assisted by a vile aggregation of liars. They abuse the government every time it undertakes to guard American citizens or American interests abroad. Consciously or otherwise they play directly into the hands of communistic agents of the empire who are fighting the pacifists here.

It is a fact that the pacifists have been placed for a person to become identified with even the most legitimate effort to promote the cause of peace without laying himself open to suspicion regarding his loyalty and good sense.

The reaction of the Plainfield veterans was natural and excusable. It was not the result of lack of sympathy with sane, practical efforts to exterminate war. It was the result of a quite justifiable fear of something masquerading under a fair name which really is a deadly enemy to peace, and in particular to the peace and security of America.

If the legitimate peace movement in this country had been allowed to develop and has lost adherents; such as Sherwood Eddy and his kind, are the persons who are to blame.—Detroit Free Press.

"HANDS OFF CHINA."

We have heard a good deal of this. We have had mass-meetings addressed by fiery orators demanding that we shall keep our hands off China. We have been warned by individual philanthropists and by societies that we must not make war on China, but should recall our war vessels and our three large regiments of marines and leave the Chinese free to work out their own destinies.

What, then, is the explanation of these frantic demands that China shall be left to its own rotters, and not even a refuge be offered to foreigners? Are they paid for by Russian money remitted through Arcos, Limited, of London? The raid of Scotland Yard disclosed the fact that the Russian trading establishment is a station for Communist espionage and propaganda, and in particular that it has been the "Hands Off China" agitation. If the promoting of the "Hands Off China" movement will only keep their hands off China the Moscow soviet, which has advanced $10,000,000 to assist the Cantonese insurrection, will probably get both hands on China and make a Communist state of it if it can. The chance of doing that, however, is smaller than it was a few months ago.

If England and America can be induced to get out of China and take away all their nationals, or leave them to be killed by rioters and bandits, Russia will be able to get possession of the nation of 400,000,000 persons and use it as a force for breaking down "capitalism" and inaugurating Communism.

To this end Arcos, Limited, is apparently being used as its trading corporation. The money of the Russian soviet to support the "Hands Off China" and the "make no war on China" movement. It would be interesting to do a little searching in this country for the basis of similar demands.—Philadelphia Record.

Poems That Live.

TAKE ALL OF ME.
Take all of me—I am thine own, heart soul, Brain, body—all; that I am or dream Is thine forever; yes, though space should part With thy conditions, I'd fulfill the whole.

Here to fulfill them to be loved of thee, Oh, love me—love me to love me but a way To kill me—love me, so to die would be To live forever. Let me hear thee say Once only, "Dear, I love thee"—then all life Would be one sweet remembrance, thou its king; Nay, thou art that already, and the strife Of twenty worlds could not surpass thee then.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A man in an eastern city died not long ago, leaving an estate of nearly $5,000,000. His bequests were not unusual. The disposition of his money made no sensation. But he wrote a paragraph to his children in his will which contains more sound sense and is more important to those who will read it and think about it than the mere details of how and where he left his money. He said: "Be frugal and generous, charitable according to your means. Always love, respect and assist one another. Remember your best friend is your purse, and when that is empty friendship is but a name. As a result of my knowledge I admonish you that your mother is the heartiest of the family. Continue to cherish and love her. She shares your every joy and sorrow."

To question a wise man is the beginning of wisdom. Many of us are too timid to ask questions. We are afraid that our question will show that we are ignorant. We pass by opportunities to learn, we pass by things we ought to know about and that we could easily find out about because we lack the nerve to ask questions. Most successful people are questioners and listeners. The person who is willing to risk getting a reputation for ignorance in some things by asking questions is the man who makes himself an expert.

Philip D. Armour, who made Armour & Company, walked all the way to New York in the early days. He wanted to find gold. The journey took him six months. When he got there he didn't find it. All he found was a job digging for those who had got there first. That was a bitter disappointment for Armour. He came back to Chicago and founded a great fortune. Did you ever have a bitter disappointment? What did you do about it? Were you disappointed now in something that didn't go over? What are you doing? Are you quitting or are you going on?

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTIRE.

New York, June 7.—Coney Island at night in delicate lace of lights is about the most entrancing vista in the world. It is where an overworked city tumbles madly at sundown for a few hours of play. Despite cheap thrills it never grows tawdry.

Here the poor and the rich become fellow prisoners of pleasure beyond the turnstile ticketed like so much baggage. It is one place in the world where there are no social levels. Gertie Murphy in her pinstriped skirt from Avenue A, is as welcome as Gwendolyn de Vere and her horgelnet.

No one at Coney has a destination. Mowgli clad in bathing suits they just drift, rarely sideways, but in the middle of the stream. They gorge at taffy booths, hot-dog and ice cream stands and other bazaars of frillery. It is a perpetual carnival.

Old men who would likely shock their boards of directors astride burros, papier mache whips and zebras or in Tom Mix hats gurgling over the thrill of being spanned.

Dowagers pitch rings—"the cane you ring the cane you get," play miniature bowling games for Japanese dolls, split lottery wheels for Nevada blank checks in Jersey, safety razors, blown-glass doodads, bowler hats, Spanish shawls and other jumble they do not want.

One and all ride amid hysterical giggling in aeroplane swings, plunge over fantastic falls, boats, explore caves of mystery having dark passages for the blind, and between Civil war photographs stride burros, papier mache whips and zebras or in Tom Mix hats gurgling over the thrill of being spanned.

There are dizzy rails that rush cars to perilous heights and drop them to jaxing pits. Dance halls with tinny electric pianos—"ten cents a spin" and no necking. A mad polka-madrigal of illusion where youthful romance rides high and where thousands sprawl on the sands in dead sleep beneath the smiling spatter of stars.

To attempt dignity at Coney Island is like taking a pocket flask to Europe—silly. Unless one goes there in the spirit of play its attitude of amusement is utter boredom.

Coney, to its enduring credit, has remained respectable. Peep shows and semi-obscene hooch dances in the wake of every carnival are never seen. In the old days Coney was often the scene of a riot between Civil war and Bowery gorillas, but not any more since the gorilla have gone uptown to the night club to mingle with the swells.

I happened to be at Coney many years ago when "Kid" Twist was pistolled and left in the street by, if memory serves me, Louis the Lump. Or it may have been the other way around. Anyway, I edged into the crowd and inquired of the man next to me: "What happened?"

"Some guy plinked another through the guts," was his unexcited reply. "The guys to hang a guy for shootin' off guns and scarin' children that way," he added.

A shoe repairing impresario writes me: "You will mention our establishment in your column once a month we will be glad to attend to your repair work free." All of which shows how column writers are tempted.

Rev. and Mrs. Smiley Are Honored with Reception

Approximately 500 guests were received last night at First Presbyterian Church at a farewell reception honoring Rev. and Mrs. Raymond W. Smiley, who with their son, Robert, left today for Steubenville, where Reverend Smiley has accepted the pastorate of Westminster Church. He has served as pastor of First Presbyterian Church for nearly three years.

The affair was arranged by officers of the church and sponsored by members of the church and congregation. King's Daughters, who were in charge of the affair, were beautifully banked with pink and white peonies and ferns in massive bouquets, and received the guests. Members of the session and board of trustees and their wives received at the door.

A delightfully varied program of musical numbers and talks, arranged by Mrs. L. C. Wogan, opened with an organ number, "The Storm," by Kohlman, played by Mrs. Harry Williams, church organist. A duet, "In the Garden of Tomorrow," was beautifully sung by Mrs. Karl Schell and Mrs. Eugene Moore with Mrs. Williams playing the accompaniment at the piano. "Simple Avenue," by Thome was played as a flute solo by Judge L. B. McNeal, and a group of three numbers, "In the Garden of Roses," "The Boat Song," and "Sonny" were sung by Mrs. B. L. Wallace.

W. N. Harder gave a short farewell talk, after which Judge Grant Blomster presented the honored guests with a silver tea service, compliment of the church and congregation. Reverend Smiley responded, expressing their sincere appreciation of the gift. Mrs. Williams, organist, and Miss Alfreda Horn, pianist, were heard in a duet, "Fantasia" by Demarest, concluding the program.

D. C. Nelson then extended the guests an invitation to the dining room where luncheon was served. Mrs. Charles Elliott was in charge of the serving, assisted by Mrs. W. N. Harder, Mrs. Charles Turner, who poured coffee, Mrs. Thomas Cooper, Mrs. D. C. Nelson, Mrs. Marshall McKinstry, Mrs. J. Byron Hume, Mrs. F. M. Hage, Mrs. Jonas Concklin and Mrs. J. W. Huggins, with 30 others, officers of the various organizations of the Sunday School and church. Receiving at the entrance to the dining room were Mrs. Edward Uhler, Mrs. Dan Evans, Mrs. Frank Keder, and Miss Geraldine Hard.

Velvet and Silk

For those who like the unusual in dress and even incline a bit to the bizarre, the arresting little costume illustrated will appeal.

The designer took the popular black and white scheme which has been worn so much as to have almost become common, and made of it a most distinctive model. The frock is made of black and white plaid (tulle) silk, the lower part of the skirt having a deep pleated ruffle with an upward lift in front. Following faithfully this upward movement is a band of black velvet. The sleeves are also finished with pleated ruffles with the finishing band of velvet.

The odd little black velvet jacket has a downward droop in the back to match the upward movement in front. It fastens with two narrow velvet ties, and it is collared in ermine.

A small, helmet shaped hat of black and white silk accompanies the suit, which is worn by June Marlowe.

my hat into place I was conscious that I never had looked better, and that I did not believe even Philip Veritas's fastidious taste could find any fault with the freshness or quality of my costume.

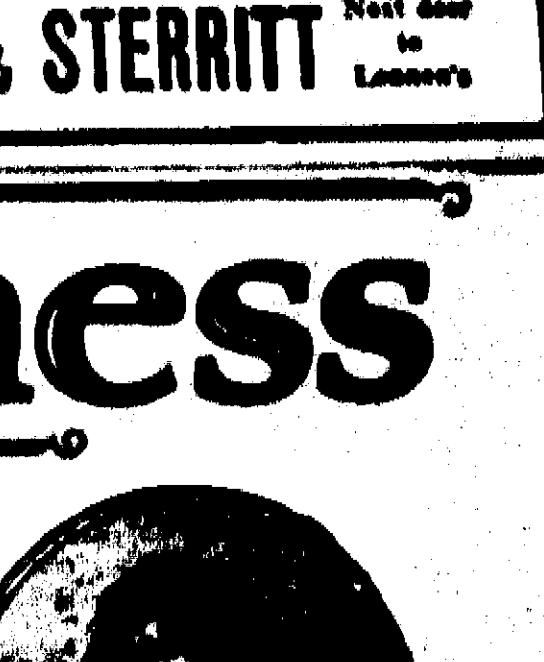

With my coat over my arm, I went back to my chair, unasily conscious of the open stares of the five masculine passengers, and sent the porter to my suitcase. When he had helped me into my coat, far we were just entering the long tunnel under the Hook River, my thoughts strayed from my sartorial affairs to conjectures concerning the red bearded man in the coach behind.

That he had been doing some conjecturing of his own, however, I found out when, as I was following a station porter down the platform from the train, the red bearded man shouldered up and fell into step beside me.

"You please tell me how does train go back?" he asked.

BEHIND THE SCREEN

Those who have seen John Barrymore's picture, "The De-loved Vagabond," remember Marceline Day, the youthful miss who so charmingly played the part of Charlotte de Vauxcelles. Miss Day is one of the younger stars in the screen world, but her talent is quickly attracting the attention of film producers and audiences.

LATELY there have come to the theaters films of unusual interest. "Nanook of the North" and "Chang," pictures based on dramatic incidents pertaining to man's struggle with elemental forces, unfolded in the midst of nature's marvelous and awe-inspiring settings. These pictures are crowded with romance and thrills.
Curiously enough, however, they do not contain any love triangles, illicit love affairs in fact, they do not contain any of the love interest. Still they are being received with great interest and are being viewed by large audiences.
In fact this rather unique and very new undertaking is paying very well indeed.

Just why all movie producers settle down to that one particular element in human life—the love interest—is a thing that is worth analyzing. Do they not by this recognize only one group of patrons, a large one admittedly, but only one nevertheless? It is true, it taken us only one phase of life. It does concern all human beings, but in addition, most of us have also other interests, experiences, aspirations, quantities, dreams that often far outweigh this one particular phase.

Will moving picture art forever go on ignoring the minds of human beings and go on overfeeding the emotions and senses with artificial, hashed over and over love affairs that prove a bore even if the settings for the stories are varied and elaborated to an amazing degree?

A tremendous step forward could be accomplished if there stepped forward a producer with courage, energy and understanding for human needs and desires who produced pictures which exposed life completely, truthfully, based on all the mysterious forces underlying and controlling this curious existence of mankind. What limitless wealth of ideas and possibilities could be derived from such sources, at the same time bringing about a competition that would spur leaders of this industry to explore unknown regions, and materialize on the screen thoughts and ideas only vaguely perceived by most of us. Who then would question the educational merit of the movies?

Gloria Swanson will play Sadie Thompson in a film of that title, based on "Hans," the celebrated play in which Jeanne Eagles appeared on the stage.

Marion Davies, who recently finished a starring role in "Quality Street," will begin work again soon on the stage.

Announcement has been made that Betty Jewel will play the lead in a movie entitled "The Last Outlaw."

SPORT
SCHOFENBERG

At this date it appears that the recreational ball commission made a wise decision in its organization of the 1927 leagues when it transferred Wesley No. 2 from the second Sunday School league to the first.

Wesley is running wild in the first league with four victories and no defeats and last week knocked off Epworth No. 1, champions of the Sunday School leagues last year. It didn't even have a tough time performing the feat. The score was 12 to 1.

What would the Wesley crew do in League No. 2?

CALVARY teams favor extremes. Calvary No. 1 is on top of Sunday School League No. 1 and Calvary No. 2 is on the bottom of the other league. The first team has won four and lost none and the second team has won none and lost three.

THE official rules for recreational ball in this city entitle a base-runner to one base in case of an overthrow of first, third or home, without being put out, in case the ball hits any object or person.

This rule is often confused with an error and has caused much argument among managers and umpires during the season. The runner may take as many bases as he can make in case of an error.

This rule is explained in the new rule book issued by the commission.

THE new rule books, issued last week, are always in evidence at a game now. If the umpire makes a false move or what a manager thinks is a blunder, he sees a little brown book flashed before him and hears an irate gentleman crying "Here it is, didn't you see it?"

WITH Kochenberger on the mound tonight, the Lutherans should defeat the Trinity Baptists, according to previous records made by both teams this season. At present, the two outfits are tied for first place in the second Sunday School League with no defeats and four victories.

Kochenberger has a list of victories to his credit in both the Church and Industrial Leagues and will be forced to his limit tonight.

The Baptists have scored one victory, however, that shows their strength. They defeated the Leat-Preshyterians, 11 to 4, and the Leat crew has been tearing up the earth ever since. In fact, the Preshys are ready to jump into a tie for second place with the team that loses in the Baptists-Lutheran fracas tonight.

THE Detroit Glouws will entertain Marion baseball fans at Lincoln Park next Sunday. When the announcement was made last Sunday before the crowd at the Marion-Epworth game, some brilliant young men chimed out, "We don't need any more clown around here, we've seen enough already."

Howitzers Drop into Tie with Erie Switchmen for Second Place as Result of Defeat; B. of R. C. Still in Cellar of League

EXCAVATORS today were topping the Association standing as a result of their 10 to 9 victory over Howitzer Co. last night. The two teams formerly were tied for first place with two victories each but Excavators now hold full possession of the coveted leading position.

Erie Switchmen broke into a tie for second place with Howitzers when they trimmed the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, 9 to 6, last night, and the American Legion stepped out of last place when it walloped the Erie Clerks, 18 to 6.

Excavators started scoring against Howitzers early in the game, making three runs in the first and two in the second inning before Howitzers realized what it was all about. But the guardians stepped into action in the third frame and counted six runs, topping the Excavators.

Everything was lovely once more until the fifth frame when the Excavators went on another rampage and brought in four runs—enough to win the contest. They put the game on ice in the sixth with another tally, but were seriously threatened in the last of the seventh when Howitzers started what looked like a winning spree. They drew up at the nine mark, however, and the Excavators took a step forward in the league standing.

Amick and Fields did the pitching for Howitzers while Midlam performed in that capacity for the Excavators. The American Legion won its first game last night. Tired of remaining in the cellar of the league, that outfit

Home runs flew fast and thick at Central Junior High as the Legion men poked them in all directions. The winners were credited with 16 hits while the Erie Clerks received only seven. Dutt and Knappenberger pitched for the losers.

B. of R. C. Defeated

Brotherhood of Railway Clerks sank deeper in the dungeon last night when they lost their third game of the season. Erie Switchmen were the victors. The score was 9 to 6. As a result of the win, the Erie Switchmen were in second place.

Greenland did the mound work for the Switchmen and E. Gilmore pitched for the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks. No box scores were received.

"BABE AND LOU, BABE AND LOU"

The fight for home run honors in the major leagues this year rests between Babe Ruth and his own teammate, Lou Gehrig. And both of them are plunging along at a pace that may carry them to Ruth's world record of 59 homers, made in 1921. Note the similarity in the "follow through" of their home run swings. Gehrig is at the left.

Another "Tale of Two Cities" is Written as Four Clubs Fight for Leagues' Lead

BY DAVID J. WALSH

NEW YORK, June 1. Another tale of two cities will be written in New York and Pittsburgh today where four ball clubs will go to war over the temporary privilege of making the pace in the two Major Leagues. The Giants can't go to the lead in the National League even should they sweep through the four-game series with the Pirates at Forbes Field but the performance in question would serve to tighten a race that has become looser than a hula's hip.

If the Cardinals merely break even with the Braves, which is somewhat unlikely, the Giants knock the Pirates off for four straight, which is even more so, and the Cubs take three out of four from the Dodgers, only a matter of two games would separate the first four clubs at the end of the current week.

The Yankee-White Sox series for leadership of the American League deals less in mere possibilities, however. The White Sox, one of the so-called sap teams of the training camps, can jump the pace for the first time by winning three out of four from the Yankees at the stadium, starting today. No other club is even close at this writing, so the entire circuit will have an eye on the proceedings.

Sox Have Chance

The Sox, working behind the impressive pitching of Thomas, Lyons, Blaukenship and others, have a great chance at this time. Both contenders have been moving at top speed for more than a week but the Yankees expect to start without Mousie in left field, to say nothing of a rearrangement of their infield, and altogether their punch is not what it was some weeks ago.

They have saved Hoyt for the first game, with Penneck, Reuther and Shocker to follow, it being evident now that only good pitching will win this series. The Sox may not hit them far and often but neither does the other fellow when he faces Chicago pitching, particularly with a batter like Mousie out and another like Mousie in. The latter was good with the Sox last year and again in the training camp this spring but he hasn't hit the size of his back hand since he was given his chance a week ago.

Pittsburgh-Giants

The Giants will go into the Pittsburgh series duly aware of the fact that they must rally around the situation, pronto, or speedily pick their spot for a nose dive. The time was not so long ago when they could beat the Pirates almost on order but that time is no more. During recent years, the Pirates have made merry at will with our Mr. McGraw's young men. It was the Pirates who really made the Giants what they are today, for the latter were riding the lead and talking penitant a month ago. Then the Pirates came to the Polo grounds, took four straight and the Giants haven't been the same since.

They dropped their last two in Cincinnati through bad pitching and it would seem that only a miracle can get them by with that kind of stuff against the Pirate hitters. To a man up a tree, an even victory would constitute a moral victory for McGraw in this series, in which case the Cards and Cubs alone would benefit. The Cardinals, in fact, hardly can go wrong against the Braves. Considering the present speed of the two outfits.

Lindbergh's Interest in Chamberlin Flight is Undiminished

AVIATOR AND VICE ADMIRAL QUITE CHUMMY

New York-Paris Hero Looking Forward to Arrival in United States

ON BOARD U. S. CRUISER NEPTUNE, June 7.—(By Radio to L. N. S.)—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, looking forward to his arrival in the New York to Germany flight, of Clarence D. Chamberlin.

After breakfast with Vice Admiral Burrage, with whom he has become a chum, Lindbergh discussed the Bellanca airplane of Aviator Chamberlin, saying:

"I always felt that the Bellanca could make such a flight. I am glad it succeeded."

Asked whether his own experience in having so much gasoline left when he reached Paris did not give the pilot of the Bellanca assurance that he could make a longer voyage, Lindbergh replied with characteristic modesty:

"The Bellanca plane could always have made a long cruise. When I landed at Le Bourget I could have gone from 500 to 1,000 miles farther, but I intended to stop at Paris. The Bellanca plane already has shown it could make a long flight."

Deserves Great Credit

Earlier, Lindbergh had said: "Chamberlin deserves great credit for his admirable flight. I have sent him personal congratulations. The plane, the motor and the man were all good."

Lindbergh did not allow his interest in the Chamberlin flight to interfere with his rest. He slept late Monday morning and did not get on deck until 10 o'clock. He strolled about and chatted with Benjamin Mahoney, builder of "The Spirit of St. Louis."

Mahoney likewise has shown keen interest in the transatlantic flight of Chamberlin.

"It was a splendid feat," said Mahoney. "Chamberlin had a fine plane and a good motor. I am glad he made it."

Capt. Fried, of the liner President Roosevelt had sent a radiogram asking the position of the Memphis and explaining that 800 passengers on his ship were anxious to have him after his course to pass close enough to the passer so they could get a glimpse of Lindbergh. However, a large crowd of onlookers and passengers on the President Roosevelt were disappointed.

Late in the afternoon a freighter showed up on the horizon and Vice Admiral Burrage and Lindbergh, having it was the Roosevelt hurried to the bridge.

Greeting from Liber

About the same time the passenger liner T. S. Colon, which happened to be in the vicinity, sent a radio message of greetings to "the glorious aviator."

Wireless dispatches from the Bellanca of International News Service to New York were picked up by the Bellanca and Lindbergh read with great interest details of Chamberlin's flight. However, he did not make such comment to make Lindbergh spend a great deal of time in the company of the vice admiral and they have discussed the New York flight in detail.

The more I study Lindbergh's flight the more I am convinced that he is the man who took the chances but adequately prepared for it," said Vice Admiral Burrage. "It is glorious that an American was not only first in history to make such a jump, but that another American repeated it."

Wanted to Fly

Lindbergh has been on shipboard now since last Saturday and he is getting a little restless. He wants to fly. He expressed a desire to fly from the deck of the Memphis in one of the two naval scout planes that off by being catapulted. It was found, however, that the plane containing "The Spirit of St. Louis" was in the way and Lindbergh, who could not be gratified, wished the ship's planes in company with Lt. Barrett, Tuller, who is known among the cronies as "The Flying Fool," and Lieut. John Hootkins, pilots of the Memphis' two machines.

The record-setting aviator had another interesting experience when he was conducted by Chief Engineer James Maxwell through the engine room of the ship.

Lindbergh is enjoying the trip and has not been seasick for a minute. He is in fine health and is looking forward keenly to getting home.

SOIL CONGRESS TO FIGURE OUT CROP CAPACITY

Agriculture Scientists To Study Productivity of Whole Earth

Washington, June 7.—To figure out the ultimate agricultural productive capacity of the earth is just one of the stupendous problems scientists of the soil are seeking to solve that will receive consideration at the First International Congress of Soil Science to be held here June 13 to 22.

This meeting, which will bring together scientists from approximately 40 countries, is to be followed by a month's transcontinental tour of the United States. The trip for the foreign visitors will have opportunity to observe first hand the varied agricultural interests and methods practiced in this country.

To Visit Farms Government and State experiment stations and demonstration farms will be visited. They will see the various soil types of varied sections, and learn of the crops to which they are best adapted. They will make excursions into irrigation, reclamation and drainage areas to get the benefit of the experience of this country in such enterprises to reclaim and make productive waste soils.

The general purpose of the congress and the tour is to obtain international record in the study of soil problems, including classification, terminology, mapping, etc. This meeting is the outgrowth of soil conferences held in Budapest in 1909, Stockholm in 1910, Prague in 1921 and Rome in 1924.

The world was interrupted by the war, one scheduled for 1914 at the then St. Petersburg, now Leningrad, having been necessarily cancelled.

World Delegates Countries to be represented at the Washington meeting, in addition to the United States, include England, Scotland, Wales, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Estonia, Poland, Rumania, Russia, Latvia, Germany, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, France, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, Italy, Palestine, India, Australia, South Africa, Soudan, Japan, Canada, Mexico, Nicaragua, Cuba, Colombia, Chile, Argentina and Brazil.

It will be world-wide in fact. Foreign delegates to the number of 125 are expected. Already more than 100 have been registered. An equal number of United States delegates will attend. Russia alone will send 17. They will come as individuals and not as official representatives of the Soviet Government, since the United States does not maintain diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia.

The proceedings of the Congress, including the texts of all addresses and papers, will be translated into two languages, English, French, German, Spanish and Italian.

President Coolidge will address the Congress and the delegates will be officially received by Secretary of Agriculture Harding.

GIRL HURT IN CRASH WITH AUTO OF M'ADOO

Former Cabinet Official Traveling with Wife; Narrowly Escapes Injuries

Bluefield, W. Va., June 7.—William Gibbs McAdoo, today was speeding by auto to Greenville, Tenn., following his narrow escape near here last night when his machine and a second automobile collided at Edison, five miles east of here, seriously injuring 10-year-old Charlotte Bliven of this city. A heavy rain, slippery road and a sharp curve contributed to the accident.

McAdoo was traveling with his wife and chauffeur to Greenville where he is to deliver a commencement address to the graduates of Tusculum College. The second auto was driven by Mrs. B. R. Calfee, Princeton, W. Va.

Occupants of the McAdoo car were uninjured. Mrs. Calfee is under a physician's care because of nervous shock and minor bruises.

Following the accident, it is said, McAdoo agreed to pay for the resulting damages and the care of the injured before proceeding in a borrowed automobile. The McAdoo left here in a driving rain. The former cabinet member is scheduled to speak at Marion, Ga., following his Tennessee address.

There's a thought in the back of your mind that you will put a telephone in your home "one of these days." But, why delay? Below are only six of the hundreds of vital reasons for the necessity of a 'phone in every modern home.

- 1- For protection. Should the house catch fire, thieves or prowlers intrude, a 'phone is the quickest call to summon aid.
- 2- In time of illness. A doctor summoned or medicines ordered arrives in a fraction of the time otherwise necessary.
- 3- As a convenience. When you wish to order household goods you lift the receiver and save hours of time.
- 4- For friendship's sake. A 'phone keeps you in touch with friends old and new.
- 5- To save time, worry, uncertainty. When circumstances necessitate that you break an engagement to meet someone.
- 6- As an identification. Everyone expects to see your name in the telephone directory. Old friends from afar and new local residents too wonder why it isn't there.
